Cargill MarketSense® Risk Managers

Our Risk Managers put more than 50 years of experience to work on your behalf. In the midst of a fast-paced, volatile market, they work hard to develop and communicate a disciplined grain marketing approach that will help you market with confidence.

Dave Reimann

Dave Reimann is a Commodity Risk Manager for Cargill's MarketSense program. He has been working in the Canadian grain industry since 1979, with most of that time spent on futures and options trade and analysis. Dave has a diverse background having worked with grain companies, food and feed processors, commodity funds, investment banks, and venture capital funds. He loves using his current role to help farmers understand how to limit risk and capture gains, using a mix of fundamental and technical analysis to identify market trends. He examines ag markets, global energy, and currency markets to determine the impact on Canadian grain and oilseed prices.

Brian Comeault

Brian has been a Commodity Risk Manager with the MarketSense team for over two years and started as an advisor almost seven years ago. He has over 15 years' experience in the agriculture commodity business. He has worked as a special crops trader and has been involved with IP soybean, environmental commodities, and foreign exchange trading. He also earned his Derivatives Market Specialist designation, specializing in exchange traded futures and options that help farms and businesses manage risk. Brian focuses on foreign exchange, macro-economic and technical analysis in MarketSense reports, updates and videos.
