

Cargill Power Canola™

Unlock your access to new markets for Canadian canola

Canola is a staple crop in your operation and a key contributor to your bottom line. That's why gaining access to multiple, stable markets for your canola is so important.

Canadian canola growers are poised to benefit from a new and rapidly expanding domestic market for clean fuel feedstocks that recognizes your responsible production and land stewardship. This is a result of Clean Fuel Regulations (CFR) that are creating incentives for the development and adoption of clean fuels with the goal of making transportation less carbon intensive.

The Cargill Power Canola program makes it easy to unlock access both to this new market and the European biofuels market with one simple, secure online enrollment process.

Why not be rewarded for what you're already doing and participate in a practical solution for the planet?

Your canola must be grown on land that is not:

Designated a protected area

Home to species at risk

Forested or wooded

Native or biodiverse grassland

A watershed or riparian zone
